FOUNDATIONAL DECLARATION, PUBLIC NOTICE & RESERVATION OF RIGHTS

Document reference: BH-FD-001v1.6 | Prepared November 21, 2026

Declarant: Brad Alan of the Hartmaier family | Professional names: Brad Hartmaier / Brad Hart

Official publication reference: https://bradhartmaier.com/public-notice/

1. Prayer to Saint Michael the Archangel

Saint Michael the Archangel, defend us in battle. Be our protection against the wickedness and snares of the devil. May God rebuke him, we humbly pray; and do thou, O Prince of the heavenly host, by the power of God, cast into hell Satan and all the evil spirits who prowl about the world seeking the ruin of souls. Amen.

2. A personal message to the living man or woman reading this notice

To the living, breathing man or woman receiving these words: before you act on behalf of an institution, corporation, government, agency, or office, I ask you to consider your own conscience, your capacity for reason, and your responsibility for the effect of your decisions on another living person.

I recognize your dignity and ask that you recognize mine. I do not approach you as an enemy and do not seek dominion over you. I seek peace, good faith, fair dealing, and reciprocal accountability. Neither a job title nor an automated system should replace thoughtful consideration of the consequences of an action.

If you read this for an organization, please convey its substance to an identified, accountable man or woman empowered to review and respond. This notice is intended to be understood, not merely indexed, classified, or discarded by a machine.

I seek peace, not conflict; understanding, not hostility; equity, not privilege; accountability, not domination.

3. Statement of Purpose and Intent

This Declaration and Public Notice is issued to establish and communicate the sincerely held beliefs, identity, inherent rights, property interests, objections, and expectations of Brad Alan of the Hartmaier family, a living biological man.

It is intended to promote peaceful coexistence, mutual respect, equity, transparency, and accountability among living men and women, governments, corporations, their representatives, and other institutions.

The Declarant requests that every recipient consider this Notice with conscience, reason, good faith, and respect for the dignity and rights of others.

This Notice establishes the Declarant's expressed positions and reservations, identifies conduct to which he objects, and provides procedures for requesting clarification, correction, accountability, and lawful remedies.

It does not seek to impose obligations beyond those established by applicable law or enforceable agreement, nor does it authorize hostility, coercion, or unlawful interference.

THE PURPOSE IS PEACE, EQUITY, ACCOUNTABILITY, AND THE PROTECTION OF INHERENT RIGHTS.

4. The Creator, God's Law, Religious Conscience and Duties

I sincerely believe that God is the source of life, moral law, and dignity, and that my life, time, labor, and lawfully acquired property are entrusted to my stewardship. I oppose treatment of living people as chattel, merely expendable sources of revenue, or collateral without lawful authority and due process.

As a matter of religious conscience, I hold that no governmental act, statute, ordinance, mandate, or corporate policy possesses moral authority to supersede God's Law or inherent rights. I reserve the right to seek lawful accommodation, object to unconstitutional conduct, pursue judicial or administrative review, and engage in peaceful lawful opposition.

4.1. Sincerely Held Religious Beliefs

The following preserves the detailed substance of the earlier Affidavit of Sincerely Held Religious Beliefs and Duties of Conscience as a public declaration. This integrated section is not represented as a newly sworn or notarized affidavit.

I believe in one Creator who is the source of life, moral law, and human dignity. The beliefs stated in this Declaration are sincerely held and religious in nature and are not merely political or philosophical opinions.

Quaker Ancestry and Religious Heritage

The Declarant acknowledges his paternal Quaker heritage and his descent from the early settlers of America. He honors the historical principles of religious liberty, freedom of conscience, peace, equality, integrity, and personal accountability associated with the Religious Society of Friends.

This ancestral and spiritual inheritance forms part of his understanding of the sacred duties of conscience, the dignity of the living man, and the responsibility to preserve liberty for future generations.

4.2. Core Beliefs About Life, Labor, and Property

I believe every human being is endowed by the Creator with inherent worth and unalienable rights, including the rights to life, liberty, and to use, control, and enjoy the fruits of one's honest labor and property for lawful and constructive purposes.

I believe my life, time, labor, and estate, including all real and personal, tangible and intangible property lawfully acquired, are entrusted to me by the Creator. I am morally bound to protect them from being used for unjust, oppressive, or destructive ends.

I believe civil government exists only to do justice, protect the innocent, and secure these God-given rights. Government has no moral authority to treat people as collateral, expendable revenue, or sureties for schemes that predictably oppress, impoverish, or degrade them.

4.3. Duties of Conscience: Refusal, Objection, Due Process, and Debt

Because of these beliefs, my conscience requires that I:

a. Refuse to consent to any demand or arrangement that treats me or my estate as inferior stakeholders, chattel, or mere revenue units;

b. Object to any exercise of power that burdens my life, liberty, family, or property without clear lawful authority and fair process;

c. Insist on due process, including notice of the specific law, jurisdiction, and facts allegedly authorizing any claim against my person or estate; and

d. Treat my estate as private property, not as a general fund for others' mismanagement.

I further believe I may not, before God, voluntarily assume or guarantee debts, obligations, or liabilities incurred by government or other actors where those obligations are used to finance unjust or aggressive war, systematic oppression, mass surveillance, weather modification programs that negatively impact humanity, environmental toxins and food modification for private gain or arbitrary deprivation of liberty, programs, mandates, or schemes that coerce harmful, unnecessary, or experimental medical, pharmaceutical, or biometric interventions under the pretext of "health," "safety," or "welfare," or censorship, intimidation, or persecution of lawful speech, conscience, or belief or wasteful mismanagement or diversion of the public trust for private, partisan, or corporate gain. I therefore do not consent, in conscience, to being treated as a personal surety or guarantor for such misuse of public credit, authority, or regulatory power or anything that negatively impacts sentient life in all forms on planet earth.

Accordingly, whenever I request proof of jurisdiction, demand the specific legal basis for a claim, revoke presumed suretyship, dispute any attempt to treat my estate as collateral for unjust schemes, or decline to cooperate with demands that violate these principles, I do so as an act of religious duty and obedience to the Creator, not to evade just law or lawful obligations.

Any retaliation, punishment, adverse classification, or coercive action taken because I live by these beliefs and exercise these rights will be understood and treated by me as a burden on my free exercise of religion and my rights of conscience.

4.4. Reservation of Rights

Nothing in this declaration shall be construed as a waiver of any constitutional, statutory, or common-law rights or protections. I expressly reserve all rights and remedies available to me at law and in equity.

4.5. Religious Accommodation Requests

Religious accommodation request: Where a policy or requirement substantially conflicts with my sincerely held religious beliefs, I request a meaningful opportunity to explain the conflict, identify an available exemption or accommodation, receive the applicable legal basis for any denial, and obtain a written decision from an accountable representative. An accommodation is requested wherever available under applicable law; this notice does not itself grant an exemption.

4.6. Conscience and the Protection of Life

Conscience and the protection of life: I affirm my moral opposition to coercion, oppression, involuntary participation in unjust conduct, and unlawful use of my body, labor, assets or protected information, while recognizing that particular exemptions and legal duties are governed by applicable law.

5. The Living Biological Man — Identity and Capacity

I, Brad Alan of the Hartmaier family, given name at birth Brad Alan, professionally known as Brad Hartmaier and Brad Hart, identify myself as a living, breathing biological man, all present and accounted for, from fertilization to my last breath.

I affirm my sincerely held belief that natural life and the inherent rights endowed by the Creator precede the formation of governments, corporations, and all other human-created institutions.

I assert my position concerning original jurisdiction arising from my biological existence and expressly object to any unauthorized substitution, presumption, classification, or representation through administrative or artificial legal constructs that misrepresent my identity, capacity, or inherent rights.

These statements express my identity, convictions, and objections; they do not by themselves establish a separate jurisdiction or exemption from otherwise applicable law.

This declaration publishes my positions and objections concerning conscience, identity, property, creative work, privacy, fair process, and institutional accountability. It is addressed to persons, corporations, organizations, government agencies, financial institutions, digital platforms, and their representatives.

5.1 Prior Declaration of Life, Identity and Proof of Obligation

The Declarant maintains that his natural biological existence and personal identity are distinct from the administrative records, accounts, classifications, and legal entities used by governments, corporations, and financial institutions.

He expressly objects to unauthorized impersonation, misrepresentation, and the attribution of debts or obligations without a demonstrable lawful basis.

Where personal liability is asserted, the Declarant requests identification of the original creditor, the nature and amount of the alleged obligation, the applicable agreement or legal authority, and reliable documentation establishing the claim and the Declarant's responsibility.

The Declarant reserves all applicable rights to dispute, request verification of, and seek review or correction of inaccurate or unsupported claims.

His prior Claim of Life, dated January 20, 2024, is preserved separately as part of the historical record of his expressed identity, beliefs, and objections.

6. Government, the Constitution, Equity and Limits of Authority

Article VI, clause 2 of the U.S. Constitution describes laws of the United States made in pursuance of the Constitution as supreme law. I invoke constitutional limitations and the principles of popular sovereignty expressed in the Declaration of Independence, James Madison's Federalist Nos. 46 and 49, and the Pennsylvania Minority Dissent of 1787. These sources are cited for their historical and constitutional principles, not as authority for personal nullification of a law.

Administrative convenience, efficiency, expediency, or institutional preference alone is not a substitute for lawful authority, due process, or compliance with constitutional guarantees.

The Declaration of Independence identifies consent of the governed as the source of just governmental powers. In The Federalist No. 46, James Madison places ultimate authority in the people alone. I invoke these principles through peaceful and lawful means.

7. Definitions and Interpretation

Man: A living, breathing biological entity, all present and accounted for, from fertilization to the last breath, a creation of Father God and Mother Earth, possessing inherent dignity and rights endowed by the Creator, independent of any artificial legal or administrative construct.

Descendant of the Original Settlers of America: The Declarant identifies himself as a descendant of the original settlers of America and acknowledges his ancestral connection to the founding generations whose lives, labor, faith, property, and sacrifices contributed to the establishment and development of American communities and institutions.

The Declarant honors this heritage as an enduring aspect of his personal identity, historical inheritance, moral responsibility, and commitment to the foundational principles of liberty, conscience, self-government, and the sovereignty of the People.

He maintains that governmental institutions are accountable to the People and that the inheritance of liberty carries both rights and responsibilities to future generations.

Any specific ancestral, hereditary, property, or legal claim arising from this lineage shall be supported by the applicable historical records and governing law.

Ancestral Lineage, Inheritance, Property and Reservation of Rights

The Declarant, as a descendant of the Original Settlers of America, expressly reserves and asserts all lawful rights, interests, claims, titles, inheritances, authorship, ownership, and property interests arising from his ancestral lineage, whether originating in the past, existing in the present, or accruing in the future.

The Declarant does not voluntarily waive, abandon, transfer, surrender, or relinquish any such lawful right or interest merely through administrative classification, registration, omission, alteration of records, or an unauthorized representation of his identity or lineage.

Where ancestral property, inheritance, title, authorship, or ownership has been incorrectly documented, attributed, transferred, withheld, or reclassified, the Declarant reserves the right to demand an accounting, examine the historical record, establish his lawful interest, and seek correction, recognition, restoration, or recovery through applicable legal and equitable remedies.

The Declarant asserts his right to receive and hold any property, title, inheritance, or ownership interest to which he is lawfully entitled, without unauthorized interference or deprivation.

All applicable ancestral, hereditary, proprietary, contractual, equitable, and constitutional rights and remedies are expressly reserved, subject to the evidence and governing law applicable to each claim.

Declarant: The living, breathing biological man making this Declaration, Brad Alan of the Hartmaier family, speaking and acting in his own capacity, expressing his sincerely held beliefs, conscience, identity, intentions, objections, and reservation of rights.

People: For purposes of this declaration, the living, breathing biological men and women whose natural existence the Declarant understands to begin at fertilization and continue until their last breath. This states the Declarant's intended meaning and belief, not a replacement for controlling statutory definitions.

Person: For purposes of this Declaration, the term "Person" shall be interpreted according to its specific context and applicable law. It may refer to a living biological man or woman, or to an artificial legal entity, including a corporation, association, trust, or other legally recognized organization.

The Declarant expressly distinguishes his natural biological existence from artificial legal entities and objects to any presumption that his identity, rights, or capacity may be substituted, transferred, or recharacterized without lawful authority.

Use of the term "Person" shall not, by itself, constitute the Declarant's consent to any unauthorized representation, obligation, or surrender of rights.

Living biological man: The Declarant's description of his natural biological existence, distinct from the legal organization of corporations and administrative institutions.

God's Law: The divine moral authority and duties of conscience understood and sincerely held by the Declarant.

Inherent rights: Rights the Declarant understands to arise from natural existence and the Creator, rather than discretionary grants of an institution.

Original Jurisdiction: The Declarant's sincerely held position that his original standing and inherent rights arise from his natural biological existence, beginning at fertilization, as a living creation of Father God and Mother Earth. Such existence precedes governments, corporations, courts, and artificial legal constructs.

The Declarant expressly objects to any unauthorized presumption, administrative classification, or exercise of authority under color of law that misrepresents his identity, capacity, or inherent rights. He maintains that governmental authority must rest upon a demonstrable lawful foundation and remain subject to constitutional limitations, due process, and accountability.

Law: A rule or body of rules established or recognized by lawful authority to govern conduct, protect rights, establish duties, and provide remedies. Law includes applicable constitutional, statutory, regulatory, and common-law principles.

Common Law: The body of legal principles developed through judicial decisions, precedent, established customs, and historical legal practice, as distinguished from laws enacted by legislative bodies. The Declarant recognizes the historical importance of common law in protecting individual rights, property, due process, and lawful remedies.

Natural Law: The moral principles the Declarant understands to arise from the Creator, human nature, reason, and the inherent dignity of living men and women, existing independently of laws enacted by governments.

Court: For purposes of this Declaration, a court is a forum for the examination of facts, evidence, rights, obligations, grievances, and disputes, guided by principles of truth, justice, equity, due process, and accountability.

The Declarant distinguishes government-established courts and administrative tribunals from private assemblies, councils, and dispute-resolution proceedings convened by living men and women.

The Declarant asserts his right to convene and preside over private proceedings concerning his own affairs, property, conscience, and voluntary agreements, guided by God's Law, the Ten Commandments, and the principles of justice understood through his Christian faith.

He requests full disclosure of the lawful authority, jurisdiction, procedures, and consequences of any governmental, administrative, or private proceeding affecting his rights or property, together with notice and a meaningful opportunity to be heard wherever required by applicable law.

The Declarant expressly objects to unauthorized assumptions of consent, misrepresentation of jurisdiction, and unlawful exercises of authority under color of law.

Private proceedings may produce agreements, records, findings, or decisions within the lawful authority of their participants. Such proceedings do not, solely by their creation, acquire governmental judicial powers or bind nonconsenting parties.

Jurisdiction: For purposes of this Declaration, the Declarant distinguishes his asserted original jurisdiction, arising from his natural biological existence beginning at fertilization as a creation of Father God and Mother Earth, from the jurisdiction claimed or exercised by governments, courts, corporations, and administrative institutions.

The Declarant maintains that his existence, inherent dignity, and Creator-endowed rights precede the establishment of such institutions and do not originate from their statutes, regulations, registrations, classifications, or administrative records.

Governmental and judicial jurisdiction constitutes an exercise of legally established authority, subject to constitutional limitations, applicable law, due process, and accountability. The Declarant expressly objects to any unlawful exercise or purported exercise of authority under color of law that misrepresents his identity, disregards his inherent rights, or exceeds lawful jurisdiction.

The Declarant reserves the right to question and challenge the legal and factual basis of any asserted jurisdiction through appropriate lawful procedures.

Estate: The Declarant's lawfully held or controlled property, assets, rights, and interests, including creative works and legally protected intellectual property.

Principal: A person authorizing another to act on his behalf within an agency relationship.

Agent: A person or entity acting under authority conferred by a principal, within the scope of applicable law.

Equity: Principles and legal doctrines of fairness, good faith, and equitable relief recognized where applicable.

Consent: Authorization legally sufficient for the specific transaction, collection, use, or activity at issue.

Constructive trust: An equitable remedy a court may impose under appropriate circumstances; it is not automatically created by publication of this notice.

Color of law: Exercise or purported exercise of governmental authority; the Declarant objects to its unlawful exercise.

Personal information: Information relating to or capable of identifying the Declarant, subject to relevant privacy protections.

Biometric information: Physiological, behavioral, or derived data used to identify or authenticate an individual, where collected.

Authorized representative: An identifiable individual or entity with verifiable authority to act for an organization.

Public notice: This published record of beliefs, positions, objections, demands, and reserved rights, subject to applicable law.

Fee schedule: Published proposed service rates and monetary demands, enforceable only when established by agreement or other legal authority.

No contrary characterization of my declared identity or intended terminology is voluntarily adopted by me merely by presumption. I request that any recipient relying on a different controlling definition identify its source and application. This provision does not override definitions imposed by applicable law.

I reject any voluntary adoption of substituted administrative or corporate descriptions that misrepresent my declared identity, and request the precise source and applicability of any contrary definition relied upon by a recipient.

8. Identity Verification, Privacy and Biometric Protections

I object to unauthorized collection, capture, retention, profiling, resale, disclosure, or repurposing of sensitive personal or biometric information. The fact that I use a platform or supply identity documents to obtain a specific service does not, by itself, grant unlimited authorization for unrelated uses.

I request written disclosure of the purposes of collection; the legal or contractual basis relied upon; identifiable past and present recipients, affiliates, contractors and service providers; anticipated future categories of recipients; security controls; retention periods; available deletion procedures; and a channel for updates as processing relationships change.

Where an organization collects identification or financial documents from me, I request meaningful reciprocal accountability: the responsible legal entity, an identifiable authorized human contact or accountable office, and the means to challenge incorrect decisions, including automated decisions where review is available.

I will not publish a birth certificate, government identification document, account number, personal signature image, or other unnecessarily sensitive record as part of this public master. Such records may be separately produced to an appropriately verified recipient when genuinely necessary.

8.1. Corporate Biometric Property Notice — Integrated Substantive Provisions

Source: Corporate Biometric Property Notice dated January 21, 2026. The following provisions are integrated for general public notice. Original letterhead, mailing address, recipient fields, enclosure instructions, and signature blocks are excluded from this public master.

8.1.1. Definition and Scope of Biometric Property

For purposes of this notice, "biometric identifiers" and "biometric information" include, without limitation:

a. fingerprints, palm prints, hand or face geometry;

b. facial images and facial recognition templates;

c. retina, iris, or other eye-based identifiers;

d. voice prints or other voice-based templates;

e. DNA, genetic profiles, and related reference templates;

f. gait, keystroke, or other behavioral patterns used to identify a person; and

g. any digital template, hash, token, or profile derived from these characteristics and used to identify, authenticate, or track me.

I regard these biometric identifiers and the data and templates derived from them as highly sensitive personal information and as part of my private property and Estate, subject to the protections described in the religious and foundational declarations within this master document.

8.1.2. Demand for Disclosure of Legal Basis and Practices

Please provide, in writing, a clear explanation of your company's practices regarding biometric identifiers and biometric information related to me, including:

a. Whether you currently collect, have collected, or intend to collect any biometric identifiers or biometric information relating to me, and if so, which categories;

b. The specific legal bases and mechanisms you rely on for such collection and use, including:

i. any reliance on express consent, contracts, terms of service, or privacy policies;

ii. any reliance on federal or state statutes, regulations, or court orders; and

iii. any reliance on legitimate-interest or similar justifications under applicable privacy laws;

c. Where, if at all, the text of any statute, regulation, or contract you rely on expressly makes its terms applicable to my private property, person, and biometric identifiers, rather than only to generic "users", "consumers", or "data" in the abstract;

d. Your policies on retention, destruction, and security of biometric identifiers and biometric information, including maximum retention periods and procedures for deletion upon request or once the original purpose has been satisfied; and

e. The categories of third parties with whom you share or to whom you disclose biometric identifiers or biometric information (for example, affiliates, service providers, data brokers, advertisers, analytics providers, or law enforcement), and the purposes of such sharing.

8.1.3. Expectations and Restrictions on Use

Unless and until you demonstrate a clear, specific, and lawfully sufficient basis for doing otherwise, you are hereby placed on notice that:

a. You are not authorized to sell, lease, trade, or otherwise transfer my biometric identifiers or biometric information for value, nor to disclose them to any third party except as strictly necessary to provide a service I have knowingly requested and where such disclosure is clearly disclosed and lawfully justified by text that you contend reaches my private property and biometric Estate;

b. You are not authorized to use my biometric identifiers or biometric information for marketing, behavioral advertising, profiling, credit-scoring, social-scoring, or other automated decision-making that produces legal or similarly significant effects concerning me, without my explicit, informed consent and a clear explanation of the logic and consequences;

c. You are not authorized to retain my biometric identifiers or biometric information longer than is strictly necessary for the limited purpose for which they were lawfully obtained, and you are expected to securely delete or irreversibly de-identify them once that purpose has been fulfilled;

d. You are not authorized to repurpose my biometric identifiers or biometric information for new products, services, pilots, or data-sharing programs beyond the original narrow purpose disclosed at the time of collection, unless you first obtain my explicit, informed consent after providing clear notice of the new uses and identifying the specific legal or contractual language you claim allows such use with respect to my private property and biometric identifiers; and

e. You are not authorized to use my biometric identifiers or biometric information in ways that unlawfully conflict with my sincerely held religious beliefs and duties of conscience, as expressly declared in Section 4 — The Creator, God's Law, Religious Conscience and Duties of this Foundational Declaration.

Such objections include any use that would unlawfully treat my biological identity, person, or Estate as collateral, a commercial resource, a data source, or an expendable asset for purposes of unjust surveillance, coercion, manipulation, exploitation, or degradation.

I request meaningful consideration of these objections, identification of the lawful authority relied upon for any conflicting practice, and evaluation of any religious accommodation available under applicable law.

8.1.4. Statutory and Common-Law Rights Reserved

Without limiting the generality of the foregoing, I expressly reserve all rights and remedies that may be available to me under:

a. any applicable federal or state biometric-privacy statutes, consumer-privacy statutes, and data-breach or security laws;

b. any state constitution, common-law privacy or data-protection doctrines, and consumer-protection or unfair-practice laws; and

c. any contract, membership, or other agreement under which you deal with me.

Nothing in this notice shall be construed as a waiver of any constitutional, statutory, or common-law rights, including the right to seek statutory damages, actual damages, injunctive relief, or other remedies where available.

8.1.5. Response and Ongoing Communications

Please provide your written response to this notice, including the disclosures requested in Section 8.1.2, within a reasonable time. If you contend that any of the expectations and limits in Section 8.1.3 cannot be honored because of specific legal obligations or technical constraints, identify those obligations or constraints with particularity and identify any specific statutory, regulatory, or contractual language you claim makes those obligations applicable to my private property and biometric identifiers, so that I can evaluate them in good faith.

All rights, defenses, objections, and remedies, constitutional, statutory, contractual, and equitable are expressly reserved.

8.2. Government Biometric Property Notice — Integrated Substantive Provisions

Source: Government Biometric Property Notice dated January 21, 2026. The following provisions are integrated for general public notice. Original letterhead, government recipient address, enclosure instructions, and signature blocks are excluded from this public master.

8.2.1. Definition and Scope of Biometric Property

For purposes of this notice, "biometric identifiers" and "biometric information" include, without limitation:

a. fingerprints, palm prints, hand or face geometry;

b. facial images and facial recognition templates;

c. retina, iris, or other eye-based identifiers;

d. voice prints or other voice-based templates;

e. DNA, genetic profiles, and related reference templates;

f. gait, keystroke, or other behavioral patterns used to identify a person; and

g. any digital template, hash, token, or profile derived from these characteristics and used to identify or track me.

I regard these biometric identifiers and the data and templates derived from them as highly sensitive personal information and as part of my private property and Estate, subject to the protections described in the religious and foundational declarations within this master document.

8.2.2. Demand for Lawful Basis, Notice, and Limits

I hereby request that any governmental agency collecting, retaining, processing, sharing, or otherwise using my biometric identifiers or information provide a clear, complete, and properly cited written explanation of the lawful authority, purposes, procedures, and limitations governing such activities.

Specifically, I request disclosure of the following:

a. Statutory, Regulatory, and Judicial Authority

Identify the specific federal or state statutes, regulations, court orders, or other legally sufficient authorities relied upon for:

i. Collecting, capturing, scanning, or enrolling my biometric identifiers or information;

ii. Storing, retaining, processing, or linking such information to my name, identity, administrative records, or other identifiers; and

iii. Sharing, matching, transferring, or otherwise using such information for law enforcement, administrative, identification, surveillance, or other purposes.

b. Applicable Definitions and Legal Provisions

Identify whether the authorities cited expressly define or regulate biometric identifiers, biometric information, or equivalent categories of personal information.

Provide the relevant citations, definitions, and specific provisions relied upon to establish the scope and limits of your agency's authority.

c. Categories, Purposes, Retention, and Destruction

Identify the categories of biometric identifiers, information, and derived templates currently held, previously collected, or intended to be collected concerning me.

For each category, identify its purpose, applicable retention period, security protections, and the procedures and criteria governing correction, deletion, destruction, or other legally authorized disposition.

d. Third-Party Access, Disclosure, and Data Sharing

Identify the categories of third parties, including other governmental agencies, contractors, private service providers, data brokers, and interstate or international databases, with whom my biometric information has been or may be shared.

For each category of disclosure, identify its purpose, the lawful authority relied upon, and any applicable limitations on further access, use, retention, or redistribution.

e. Consent, Refusal, and Consequences

Identify whether any biometric collection or processing is mandatory or voluntary, the specific legal authority governing that determination, and any available alternatives or accommodations.

Where consent is requested, explain the consequences, if any, of declining or withdrawing consent, including the legal basis for any resulting restriction, denial of service, adverse classification, or other consequence.

I further request clarification of how such consequences comply with applicable constitutional guarantees, including due process and equal protection.

f. Applicability of Legal Authority to the Declarant

Identify the specific statutory, regulatory, judicial, or other legally sufficient provisions relied upon to establish your agency's authority concerning my biological identity, personal information, biometric identifiers, and associated records.

Where the applicable law uses terms such as "person," "individual," "subject," or "data," identify the controlling definitions and explain how those provisions apply to me and to the specific collection, processing, retention, or disclosure at issue.

I request that this determination be supported by identifiable legal authority rather than unexplained administrative presumptions.

Reservation of Rights Pending Disclosure

Pending a clear, complete, and properly cited response, I expressly reserve my objections to any biometric collection, capture, retention, processing, disclosure, or reuse for which a lawful basis has not been adequately identified.

I do not voluntarily consent to biometric processing beyond the scope of any authorization I have knowingly provided, nor do I concede that an agency possesses unlimited authority over my biometric identifiers or information.

Nothing in this notice constitutes a refusal to comply with a clearly applicable and constitutionally valid legal requirement. All applicable rights, objections, protections, and lawful remedies remain expressly reserved.

8.2.3. Expectations and Restrictions on Use

Subject to any mandatory legal requirements supported by specific, identifiable lawful authority, I hereby place your agency on formal notice of the following objections, expectations, and restrictions:

a. Lawful Authority and Limitations

I do not consent to the collection, capture, enrollment, retention, or reuse of my biometric identifiers or information beyond what is expressly authorized or required by applicable law. I request that your agency identify the specific statutory or regulatory authority, purpose, and limitations applicable to any such activity.

b. Automated Decisions and Human Review

My biometric identifiers and information shall not be used to subject me to automated or artificial intelligence-driven adverse decisions, including denial of access, blacklisting, profiling, or risk classification, without meaningful human review and a clear written explanation of the factual and legal basis for such decisions, consistent with applicable law.

c. Retention, Security, and Destruction

My biometric identifiers and information shall not be retained longer than necessary to fulfill a specifically identified lawful purpose or mandatory retention requirement. Upon expiration of that purpose or requirement, I request secure deletion, destruction, or other legally appropriate disposition of such information, including derived biometric templates and associated records.

d. Restrictions on Repurposing and Disclosure

My biometric identifiers and information shall not be repurposed for new programs, experimental initiatives, automated identification systems, or data-sharing arrangements beyond the original purpose disclosed at the time of collection without a specifically identified lawful basis.

Where applicable, I request advance written notice, a meaningful opportunity to object, and identification of the precise statutory or regulatory authority relied upon for such expanded collection, use, or disclosure.

e. Religious Conscience and Protection of the Living Man

I expressly object to the collection, processing, retention, disclosure, or use of my biometric identifiers and information in ways that conflict with my sincerely held religious beliefs and duties of conscience, as declared in Section 4 of this Foundational Declaration.

Such objections include practices that would unlawfully treat my biological identity, person, or Estate as collateral, a commercial resource, or an expendable source of information for purposes of coercion, exploitation, unjust surveillance, manipulation, or degradation.

I request that these objections receive meaningful consideration and that any legally available religious accommodation be evaluated individually, in good faith, and with a written explanation of the determination.

8.2.4. Constitutional and Religious-Freedom Grounds

As set forth in the foundational provisions of this master document, I assert my rights under:

a. the Constitution of the United States and applicable Bill of Rights guarantees (including due process, equal protection as incorporated, and related privacy interests);

b. the constitution and privacy laws of my state of residence; and

c. my sincerely held religious beliefs and duties of conscience, including the right to live according to those beliefs without arbitrary or disproportionate burdens imposed through data practices, profiling, or coerced biometric participation.

Any attempt to penalize, retaliate against, or reclassify me solely because I assert these rights and objections, including by denying otherwise available services, benefits, or opportunities without clear statutory authority (including text that purports to reach my private property and biometric Estate) and due process, will be treated by me as a burden on my constitutional rights and free exercise of religion and conscience, and may form part of any future administrative complaint or civil action I am advised to bring.

8.2.5. No Refusal of Lawful Process; Reservation of Rights

This notice is not a refusal to comply with any clearly applicable, constitutionally valid law. It is a formal demand for clarity, lawful basis, and respect for defined limits on biometric collection and use.

Upon receipt of a clear, specific, and properly cited legal basis addressing the points above, I will review your position in good faith and determine how best to proceed.

All rights, defenses, objections, and remedies, constitutional, statutory, and equitable, are expressly reserved, including rights under any applicable biometric-privacy, data-privacy, or consumer-protection statutes and under my state's constitution and public-law doctrines.

9. Property, Creative Works and Intellectual Property

I reserve all rights I lawfully hold in original writings, photographs, drawings, designs, recordings, publications, sets, props, fabrication plans, models, prototypes, films, professional identity, trademarks where applicable, and other protected works. Public access does not transfer ownership or grant unrestricted permission to reproduce, alter, distribute, or commercially exploit protected content.

Ownership of original works and physical objects is determined by applicable law and actual agreements. Payment, delivery, possession, display, and professional collaboration do not automatically establish copyright transfer. Work made for hire and assignment questions are governed by applicable legal rules and valid agreements. Third-party materials displayed in a portfolio remain subject to the rights of their owners.

I object to actionable infringement, unauthorized commercial exploitation, unlawful impersonation, defamation, fraudulent misrepresentation, and unlawful interference with my commercial relationships. I request correction, removal where warranted, preservation of evidence, and available lawful relief.

9.1. Rights in Works, Identity and Portfolio — Public Notice BH-PN-001

PUBLIC ACCESS DOES NOT CONSTITUTE PUBLIC OWNERSHIP OR AUTHORIZATION. Viewing, downloading, receiving, purchasing, or discovering materials does not transfer copyright ownership or grant unrestricted reproduction, distribution, alteration, licensing or commercial exploitation rights. Written authorization is required for uses reserved to the owner unless independently permitted by applicable law or a valid license.

Protected subject matter includes original photographs, drawings, designs, written materials, videos, sound recordings, plans, models, scenic concepts and elements, props, special effects, publications and professional creative works. Alleged unauthorized commercial use by digital platforms, indexing services, AI systems, and content distributors is expressly objected to, subject to applicable law.

No person or entity is authorized by this notice to impersonate my identity or businesses through fraudulent websites, counterfeit accounts, forged communications, deceptive endorsements, false professional representations or unlawful commercial solicitations. I request investigation and correction of documented false factual representations and actionable interference.

Original creations and work-for-hire status: An independently commissioned work is not presumed to constitute a work made for hire solely because a client requested or paid for its creation. Any party claiming assignment, employment-based ownership, or a valid specially commissioned work-for-hire arrangement is requested to identify its governing agreement and applicable legal basis. Copyright in a work is distinct from ownership of a physical item containing that work.

Portfolio material: I document professional contributions for identification and historical presentation. Third-party films, photographs, marks, characters, and other content remain subject to their owners' rights; my publication does not claim ownership of third-party intellectual property. No unrestricted license or assignment is granted merely through display.

10. Governmental and Corporate Accountability; Automated Systems

I request that public bodies and private businesses dealing with me identify the legal, contractual, or administrative basis for demands affecting my rights or property, the responsible decision-maker, and an effective procedure for written review and correction.

I object to specific actionable conduct by search engines, social platforms, artificial intelligence operators, data aggregators, and automated systems that unlawfully exploit my works, impersonate my identity, or misrepresent protected commercial interests. Unfavorable rankings alone are not asserted to constitute unlawful conduct; each allegation requires specific evidence and applicable legal grounds.

When I am asked to provide verified identity or financial records, I request authentication and identification of the accountable receiving entity, the status of any outside agent or contractor, and direct escalation to authorized personnel. My use of services does not make me an employee or professional consultant of the service provider.

11. Published Monetary Demands and Professional Services

These figures are published settlement demands and proposed service rates, not self-executing fines, liens, invoices, penalties, or debts. Publication alone does not establish acceptance or financial liability. All legally recoverable damages, profits, restitution, expenses and equitable remedies are reserved.

11.1. Monetary Demands, Agency and Commercial Obligations

These amounts preserve the demands stated in Public Notice BH-PN-001, Version 1.0 (November 6, 2026), and are not automatic penalties: $1,000,000 per day per documented continuing intellectual-property violation; $10,000,000 per documented occurrence of actionable defamation, fraudulent impersonation or unlawful commercial interference; $1,000,000 per documented occurrence of unauthorized commercial exploitation; $10,000,000 per documented occurrence of unlawful garnishment, lien, levy, seizure or encumbrance.

The special administrative, research, documentation and professional service rate remains $25,000 per hour only where the service has been expressly requested and accepted on enforceable terms. A routine customer dispute or unsolicited notice does not alone create an invoice or accepted agreement.

All legally recoverable damages, profits, restitution, expenses, statutory remedies, injunctions and other relief are reserved. Public notification alone creates neither an automatic debt nor a self-executing lien.

An entity asserting a contractual obligation, financial claim, levy, lien or seizure is requested to identify its agreement, judgment, statute, court order or other valid authority. No agent becomes personally liable for another's obligations solely by association, and lawful obligations are not invalidated by this declaration.

No silence, delay, or failure immediately to object shall, by itself, be treated as my voluntary waiver of rights. Likewise, a recipient's silence does not itself constitute assent to this notice.

12. Notice, Evidence, Correction and Lawful Remedies

12.1. Notice Procedure

1. Identify the specific challenged action or content and the remedy requested.

2. Preserve relevant correspondence, agreements, logs, records, dates, and other evidence.

3. Identify the lawful or contractual authority relied upon and the person or office authorized to resolve the matter.

4. Respond in writing within ten calendar days as a requested voluntary response period, subject to any different applicable legal deadline.

5. If unresolved, pursue appropriate lawful complaint, review, appeal, negotiation, or judicial processes.

I may rely on correspondence, recordings, screenshots, dated records, witnesses, original works, metadata, and other reliable evidence, subject to applicable admissibility and authentication standards. Silence or non-response does not automatically establish agreement, guilt, legal liability, or waiver.

12.2. Evidence, Correction and Response

Alleged violations may be documented through sworn affidavits, declarations, witness testimony, contracts, original records, photographs, recordings, correspondence, metadata, screenshots, archival records, server logs and other relevant reliable materials.

Upon written notice of a particular allegation, I request that the recipient: (1) cease specifically identified unlawful activity; (2) remove or disable access to infringing material when legally required; (3) preserve relevant records; (4) identify the agreement, license or other authority relied upon; and (5) respond in writing and seek resolution within ten calendar days. Applicable legal response periods prevail where different.

If the matter remains unresolved, I reserve the right to pursue review, negotiated resolution, correction, private dispute resolution by mutual agreement, jury trial where available, and other appropriate lawful remedies. Evidence and allegations remain subject to standards of reliability, authentication, proof and due process.

This notice is effective upon actual publication as a statement of positions and requested terms; it may be amended in a clearly dated version register. A later amendment shall not by itself create retroactive contractual duties or extinguish previously accrued lawful claims.

13. Protection Against Unauthorized Seizure and Obligations

I object to unlawful attachment, levy, garnishment, lien, seizure, or encumbrance of property and request identification of the relevant contract, judgment, statute, order, or other legally sufficient authority. This notice does not invalidate lawful debts, procedures, or other obligations established under applicable law.

No person or authorized representative is automatically liable for another entity's obligation solely because of association. Any claimant should identify a lawful basis for asserted personal or third-party liability.

14. The People — Final Declaration of Authority

I affirm that living people are the source of legitimate governmental authority, and governments are instituted to secure rights, not to become masters of the governed. The Declaration of Independence invokes the consent of the governed, and James Madison wrote in Federalist No. 46 that ultimate authority resides in the people alone.

I maintain that the People collectively retain the authority to pursue accountability, reform, and constitutional change. No office, corporation, administrative system, or artificial construct should claim unlimited moral authority over the living people it affects. I seek peaceful, lawful, and conscientious means to protect rights and pursue justice.

THE PEOPLE ARE THE SOURCE OF AUTHORITY. GOVERNMENT IS THE SERVANT, NOT THE MASTER.

15. Reservation of Rights and Public Declaration

All applicable rights, claims, defenses, objections, protections and remedies at law and in equity are expressly reserved. This declaration communicates my positions and requests; it does not itself constitute a contract with a nonconsenting recipient, create a trust, override binding law, or establish damages without an applicable legal basis.

I affirm that the religious convictions and matters of conscience described herein are sincerely held and that the positions and objections stated are my own. Any future sworn factual statement may be separately made under the applicable penalty-of-perjury language and requirements of the relevant proceeding.

I personally adopt this Foundational Declaration, Public Notice & Reservation of Rights as my voluntary expression of my identity, sincerely held beliefs, conscience, intent, objections, and reservation of rights. I execute this Declaration freely and knowingly, by my own hand, as a living biological man.

17. Publication, Version History and Amendments

17.1. Amendment and Publication Register

BH-FD-001 v1.0 — November 21, 2026 — Consolidated public-safe REVIEW DRAFT prepared from the November 6, 2026 Public Notice BH-PN-001, foundational affidavits and notices, and subsequent instructions. Not executed or published by this draft alone.

BH-FD-001 v1.1 — November 21, 2026 — Approved identity declaration inserted; substantial religious-conscience provisions, corporate and government biometric notice provisions, and fuller original Public Notice protections incorporated. Public-private identifiers and notarizations omitted. Draft not yet executed or adopted. Original BH-PN-001 and source records unchanged.

BH-FD-001 v1.2 — November 21, 2026 — Reordered existing content in approved funnel (opening and prayer; God; man; government; definitions; identity and biometrics; property; accountability; remedies). Added approved identity language and a purpose statement. Earlier records remain unchanged. Not yet executed or published.

BH-FD-001 v1.3 — November 21, 2026 — Public declaration presented without handwritten signature; publisher name, publication date and declaration status provided. No substantive rights or provisions otherwise modified.

BH-FD-001 v1.4 — November 21, 2026 — Replaced the unsigned-publication closing with a signature and execution section. Prepared for personal review, signing and publication; not represented as signed or previously published. No other substantive provisions intentionally changed.

BH-FD-001 v1.5 — November 21, 2026 — Corrected the section and subsection numbering hierarchy, reset notice-procedure list numbering, and removed the obsolete embedded affidavit closing. No other substantive provisions intentionally changed. Prepared for final review before personal execution.

BH-FD-001 v1.6 — November 21, 2026 — Corrected proofreading and formatting errors, restored omitted provisions of Section 8.2.2, standardized spelling and internal references, and expanded the Declaration to incorporate definitions and provisions concerning Man, Declarant, Original Jurisdiction, Court, Jurisdiction, Natural Law, Common Law, ancestral lineage, inheritance, and reservation of rights. Added the Declarant's paternal Quaker heritage and religious-conscience statement. Preserved the Declarant's chosen identity and foundational convictions. Prepared for final review and execution.

Future versions should carry actual approval and publication dates; preserve prior executed and published copies. Existing signed and notarized source records remain separate and unaltered.
